UK Outlook for Wednesday 5 May 2021 to Friday 14 May 2021:
Unsettled conditions to start the period, especially in the south. Generally looking at sunny spells interspersed with showers across the UK. The showers may become longer spells of rain at times, and are expected to be wintry across Scottish hills. The best of the sunshine is expected in sheltered central spots. Often windy, with occasional gales possible in the far north/northeast. Temperatures colder than normal for most, especially in the north. Towards the end of the period, uncertainty increases, as is typical of spring. It is largely expected to remain unsettled, though spells of fine, dry weather will become possible, especially at the very end of the period. Temperatures likely to start trending higher, but it is unlikely to become unseasonably warm.
